Estate Planning is the intersection of many different areas of the law. Of course, an Estate Planning

attorney should understand Probate and Trust Law. And, Estate Planning attorneys must understand Estate & Gift taxes, at a minimum. It is also generally expected that they will have somewhat broader knowledge of Tax Law. On the other hand, there are some areas of the law that they certainly are not expected to understand. Criminal Law is a good example of this. Arguably, Prenuptial Agreements fall in a grey area. They certainly can affect traditional areas of Estate

Estate Planning is the intersection of many different areas of the law. Of course, an Estate Planning

attorney should understand Probate and Trust Law. And, Estate Planning attorneys must understand Estate & Gift taxes, at a minimum. It is also generally expected that they will have somewhat broader knowledge of Tax Law. On the other hand, there are some areas of the law that they certainly are not expected to understand. Criminal Law is a good example of this. Arguably, Prenuptial Agreements fall in a grey area. They certainly can affect traditional areas of Estate

Estate Planning is the intersection of many different areas of the law. Of course, an Estate Planning

attorney should understand Probate and Trust Law. And, Estate Planning attorneys must understand Estate & Gift taxes, at a minimum. It is also generally expected that they will have somewhat broader knowledge of Tax Law. On the other hand, there are some areas of the law that they certainly are not expected to understand. Criminal Law is a good example of this. Arguably, Prenuptial Agreements fall in a grey area. They certainly can affect traditional areas of Estate

Estate Planning is the intersection of many different areas of the law. Of course, an Estate Planning

attorney should understand Probate and Trust Law. And, Estate Planning attorneys must understand Estate & Gift taxes, at a minimum. It is also generally expected that they will have somewhat broader knowledge of Tax Law. On the other hand, there are some areas of the law that they certainly are not expected to understand. Criminal Law is a good example of this. Arguably, Prenuptial Agreements fall in a grey area. They certainly can affect traditional areas of Estate

Estate Planning is the intersection of many different areas of the law. Of course, an Estate Planning

attorney should understand Probate and Trust Law. And, Estate Planning attorneys must understand Estate & Gift taxes, at a minimum. It is also generally expected that they will have somewhat broader knowledge of Tax Law. On the other hand, there are some areas of the law that they certainly are not expected to understand. Criminal Law is a good example of this. Arguably, Prenuptial Agreements fall in a grey area. They certainly can affect traditional areas of Estate

Estate Planning is the intersection of many different areas of the law. Of course, an Estate Planning

attorney should understand Probate and Trust Law. And, Estate Planning attorneys must understand Estate & Gift taxes, at a minimum. It is also generally expected that they will have somewhat broader knowledge of Tax Law. On the other hand, there are some areas of the law that they certainly are not expected to understand. Criminal Law is a good example of this. Arguably, Prenuptial Agreements fall in a grey area. They certainly can affect traditional areas of Estate

Estate Planning is the intersection of many different areas of the law. Of course, an Estate Planning

attorney should understand Probate and Trust Law. And, Estate Planning attorneys must understand Estate & Gift taxes, at a minimum. It is also generally expected that they will have somewhat broader knowledge of Tax Law. On the other hand, there are some areas of the law that they certainly are not expected to understand. Criminal Law is a good example of this. Arguably, Prenuptial Agreements fall in a grey area. They certainly can affect traditional areas of Estate

Estate Planning is the intersection of many different areas of the law. Of course, an Estate Planning

attorney should understand Probate and Trust Law. And, Estate Planning attorneys must understand Estate & Gift taxes, at a minimum. It is also generally expected that they will have somewhat broader knowledge of Tax Law. On the other hand, there are some areas of the law that they certainly are not expected to understand. Criminal Law is a good example of this. Arguably, Prenuptial Agreements fall in a grey area. They certainly can affect traditional areas of Estate

Estate Planning is the intersection of many different areas of the law. Of course, an Estate Planning

attorney should understand Probate and Trust Law. And, Estate Planning attorneys must understand Estate & Gift taxes, at a minimum. It is also generally expected that they will have somewhat broader knowledge of Tax Law. On the other hand, there are some areas of the law that they certainly are not expected to understand. Criminal Law is a good example of this. Arguably, Prenuptial Agreements fall in a grey area. They certainly can affect traditional areas of Estate

Estate Planning is the intersection of many different areas of the law. Of course, an Estate Planning

attorney should understand Probate and Trust Law. And, Estate Planning attorneys must understand Estate & Gift taxes, at a minimum. It is also generally expected that they will have somewhat broader knowledge of Tax Law. On the other hand, there are some areas of the law that they certainly are not expected to understand. Criminal Law is a good example of this. Arguably, Prenuptial Agreements fall in a grey area. They certainly can affect traditional areas of Estate

Estate Planning is the intersection of many different areas of the law. Of course, an Estate Planning

attorney should understand Probate and Trust Law. And, Estate Planning attorneys must understand Estate & Gift taxes, at a minimum. It is also generally expected that they will have somewhat broader knowledge of Tax Law. On the other hand, there are some areas of the law that they certainly are not expected to understand. Criminal Law is a good example of this. Arguably, Prenuptial Agreements fall in a grey area. They certainly can affect traditional areas of Estate

Estate Planning is the intersection of many different areas of the law. Of course, an Estate Planning

attorney should understand Probate and Trust Law. And, Estate Planning attorneys must understand Estate & Gift taxes, at a minimum. It is also generally expected that they will have somewhat broader knowledge of Tax Law. On the other hand, there are some areas of the law that they certainly are not expected to understand. Criminal Law is a good example of this. Arguably, Prenuptial Agreements fall in a grey area. They certainly can affect traditional areas of Estate

Estate Planning is the intersection of many different areas of the law. Of course, an Estate Planning

attorney should understand Probate and Trust Law. And, Estate Planning attorneys must understand Estate & Gift taxes, at a minimum. It is also generally expected that they will have somewhat broader knowledge of Tax Law. On the other hand, there are some areas of the law that they certainly are not expected to understand. Criminal Law is a good example of this. Arguably, Prenuptial Agreements fall in a grey area. They certainly can affect traditional areas of Estate

Estate Planning is the intersection of many different areas of the law. Of course, an Estate Planning

attorney should understand Probate and Trust Law. And, Estate Planning attorneys must understand Estate & Gift taxes, at a minimum. It is also generally expected that they will have somewhat broader knowledge of Tax Law. On the other hand, there are some areas of the law that they certainly are not expected to understand. Criminal Law is a good example of this. Arguably, Prenuptial Agreements fall in a grey area. They certainly can affect traditional areas of Estate

Estate Planning is the intersection of many different areas of the law. Of course, an Estate Planning

attorney should understand Probate and Trust Law. And, Estate Planning attorneys must understand Estate & Gift taxes, at a minimum. It is also generally expected that they will have somewhat broader knowledge of Tax Law. On the other hand, there are some areas of the law that they certainly are not expected to understand. Criminal Law is a good example of this. Arguably, Prenuptial Agreements fall in a grey area. They certainly can affect traditional areas of Estate

Estate Planning is the intersection of many different areas of the law. Of course, an Estate Planning

attorney should understand Probate and Trust Law. And, Estate Planning attorneys must understand Estate & Gift taxes, at a minimum. It is also generally expected that they will have somewhat broader knowledge of Tax Law. On the other hand, there are some areas of the law that they certainly are not expected to understand. Criminal Law is a good example of this. Arguably, Prenuptial Agreements fall in a grey area. They certainly can affect traditional areas of Estate

Estate Planning is the intersection of many different areas of the law. Of course, an Estate Planning

attorney should understand Probate and Trust Law. And, Estate Planning attorneys must understand Estate & Gift taxes, at a minimum. It is also generally expected that they will have somewhat broader knowledge of Tax Law. On the other hand, there are some areas of the law that they certainly are not expected to understand. Criminal Law is a good example of this. Arguably, Prenuptial Agreements fall in a grey area. They certainly can affect traditional areas of Estate

Estate Planning is the intersection of many different areas of the law. Of course, an Estate Planning

attorney should understand Probate and Trust Law. And, Estate Planning attorneys must understand Estate & Gift taxes, at a minimum. It is also generally expected that they will have somewhat broader knowledge of Tax Law. On the other hand, there are some areas of the law that they certainly are not expected to understand. Criminal Law is a good example of this. Arguably, Prenuptial Agreements fall in a grey area. They certainly can affect traditional areas of Estate

Estate Planning is the intersection of many different areas of the law. Of course, an Estate Planning

attorney should understand Probate and Trust Law. And, Estate Planning attorneys must understand Estate & Gift taxes, at a minimum. It is also generally expected that they will have somewhat broader knowledge of Tax Law. On the other hand, there are some areas of the law that they certainly are not expected to understand. Criminal Law is a good example of this. Arguably, Prenuptial Agreements fall in a grey area. They certainly can affect traditional areas of Estate

Estate Planning is the intersection of many different areas of the law. Of course, an Estate Planning

attorney should understand Probate and Trust Law. And, Estate Planning attorneys must understand Estate & Gift taxes, at a minimum. It is also generally expected that they will have somewhat broader knowledge of Tax Law. On the other hand, there are some areas of the law that they certainly are not expected to understand. Criminal Law is a good example of this. Arguably, Prenuptial Agreements fall in a grey area. They certainly can affect traditional areas of Estate

Estate Planning is the intersection of many different areas of the law. Of course, an Estate Planning

attorney should understand Probate and Trust Law. And, Estate Planning attorneys must understand Estate & Gift taxes, at a minimum. It is also generally expected that they will have somewhat broader knowledge of Tax Law. On the other hand, there are some areas of the law that they certainly are not expected to understand. Criminal Law is a good example of this. Arguably, Prenuptial Agreements fall in a grey area. They certainly can affect traditional areas of Estate

Estate Planning is the intersection of many different areas of the law. Of course, an Estate Planning

attorney should understand Probate and Trust Law. And, Estate Planning attorneys must understand Estate & Gift taxes, at a minimum. It is also generally expected that they will have somewhat broader knowledge of Tax Law. On the other hand, there are some areas of the law that they certainly are not expected to understand. Criminal Law is a good example of this. Arguably, Prenuptial Agreements fall in a grey area. They certainly can affect traditional areas of Estate

Con: Fool-proof crystal balls are in short supply these days. It's hard to anticipate every change in circumstance that might occur between the time a prenuptial agreement is written and when the marriage falls apart. What seems reasonable in 2012 might be ridiculously unfair to one of the spouses ten or twenty years later. — Meri Arnett-Kremian
